

Call for 2024–2026 Graduate Public Scholars Program Applications

Program Description

The Curb Center for Art, Enterprise and Public Policy at Vanderbilt University aims to elevate art as a mode of inquiry, a way of understanding, and a celebration of the human spirit. As part of this mission, the Curb Center’s Public Scholars Program supports graduate students in implementing arts-based projects on campus and in the wider community. The Curb Center seeks applications from graduate students interested in becoming part of the 2024–2026 Public Scholars cohort. Prospective applicants are invited to attend an optional lunchtime information session on Friday, August 30th at 12:30 pm at the Curb Center, 1801 Edgehill Avenue.

The Curb Public Scholars program provides mentorship, resources, and support for graduate students to realize public-facing creative and/or arts-based projects. The Curb Center is particularly interested in projects that include creative ways to implement research findings, transform academic work into publicly available resources, or engage members of the Vanderbilt and/or Nashville community in artistic inquiry and action. Public Scholars receive a two-year grant of $2,500; access to Curb Center materials, facilities, and equipment; and workshops with artists, scholars, and community leaders to support the completion of their project. Public Scholars will also receive support to present their work at a conference in the second year of their program.

For projects that involve community partners, The Curb Center seeks to equip Public Scholars with tools for ethical arts-based engagement that is mutually beneficial rather than extractive. Thus, Public Scholars will receive training on topics including asset-based community development frameworks, relationship-building techniques, program planning and evaluation, and community-based artmaking methodologies.

Program Eligibility

The Public Scholars Program is open to Vanderbilt graduate students across disciplines who:

- Have completed at least one year of their degree and have at least two years remaining
- Have their advisor’s approval to participate in the program
- Can plan, execute, and evaluate their project by April 2026

- Are available to actively participate in approximately 3 group meetings and 1 individual meeting per semester (schedule will be decided based on selected scholars' availability)

Program Application

Applications are due on September 8, 2024. Applicants will be notified of their status on September 20, 2024. To apply, please submit the following materials in a single PDF to Rachel Thompson, Curb Center program manager, by midnight on September 8:

1. A cover letter (max. 1 page, single-spaced) that includes details about your degree program and professional goals and addresses how participation in the Curb Public Scholars Program aligns with your academic, career, and/or service trajectory
2. A project proposal that includes the following components:
 - a. A 500-word project description that provides background for your project, details about what the project will encompass, information about your audience, potential community partner(s), an explanation of how the project aligns with your academic work, and ideas for evaluating the impact of your project. If applicable, please describe the nature of your relationship with the community partner(s) with whom you plan to collaborate.
 - b. A preliminary budget for your project. Allowable expenses can include the purchase of materials and supplies, space rental fees, catering for project events, and in some cases, professional services and honoraria. There will be opportunities during the program for scholars to revise and refine their budget.
 - c. A preliminary project timeline. Projects will need to be completed and all expenses reconciled by April 2026.
3. CV
4. Completed information form with advisor's signature (see last page)

Your project details, timeline, and budget do not have to be fully conceived for the application, but you should demonstrate a general understanding of what deliverables and resources will be needed to realize your project goals. All Curb Public Scholars will have access to project management and mentorship meetings designed to support a successful project outcome across the full appointment period.

Selection Criteria

Applications will be evaluated according to the rubric below by the Curb Center’s leadership team. Applicants will receive final decisions on September 20, 2024. The Curb Center intends to select 4–5 applicants for the 2024–2026 cohort.

Does the project proposal...	Clearly	Adequately	Somewhat	Not at all
Articulate a vision for a public-facing project?
Leverage, adapt, extend, and/or draw upon the applicant’s research and/or academic work?
Outline a preliminary budget, not to exceed $2500, and timeline, not to extend beyond April 2026?
Demonstrate capacity for ethical, non-extractive collaboration with community partners, participants, and/or members of the public?
Include a creative and/or artistic component as a tool for addressing a community issue or challenge?
