

Kids Just Want to Have Fun

Chilly weather didn't stop these children at the Susan Gray School from enjoying their newly renovated, fully accessible playground. The school, a unit of Peabody College and housed within the John F. Kennedy Center for Research on Human Development, provides early childhood education for children with and without disabilities. Children and their families aren't the only ones who benefit. The Susan Gray School is a training ground for future teachers, health-care providers, therapists and researchers. Photo by Neil Brake.

1,000 Words

One image frozen in time