NSF Summer Research Experience

Paid, Summer Research Experience for Undergraduates (REU)

NSF REU Site: Cyberinfrastructure (CI) Research for Societal Advancement is now recruiting undergraduate students for the paid, nine-week summer research experience at The University of Texas at Austin. Students use national CI and conduct cutting-edge research in preparation for graduate programs and the workforce. Students receive: training and research in advanced computing – data, high performance computing, artificial intelligence, machine learning, visualization, and analytics; mentoring by researchers at UT and TACC; professional development workshops on graduate school and research communication; social and team-building activities; poster presentation, final paper, and publication opportunities. A $6300 stipend, travel, housing, and meal card are provided.

REU Dates: May 30, 2026 – August 1, 2026

Application Deadline: April 1, 2026

For more information: <https://tacc.utexas.edu/reu> or

Contact: Rosalia Gomez or Neddie Ann Underwood at cir4sc@tacc.utexas.edu.

PRE-MED: GLOBAL HEALTH

If you're a freshman or sophomore still figuring out your summer plans, I completed a program last year that helped me build my resume, gain industry skills, explore a beautiful city, and make friends from top US universities.

They offer programs in Consulting, Banking, Pre-Med, and Data Science, and only have a few spots left.

The final application deadline is on March 31 at 11:59 PM PST, so if you're still exploring options, I recommend checking out their website: <https://www.ixperience.co/?grsf=haseong-f5j5r2>
