Robin Fountain was educated at Oxford University, The Royal College of Music in London, and Carnegie Mellon University. He won a conducting fellowship to Aspen, participated in master classes with Lorin Maazel and Gennadi Rozhdestvensky, and studied at Tanglewood with Leonard Bernstein, Kurt Sanderling and Leonard Slatkin. In 2012 he was privileged to have the opportunity to train with members of the famed Berlin Philharmonic at The Conductors Lab in Aix-en-Provence, France.

Professor Fountain joined the Vanderbilt faculty 1994, and was promoted to his current position as Professor of Conducting in 2003. He has been awarded both the Madison Sarratt Prize for Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching and the Blair School’s Faculty Excellence Award. Highlights of his work with Vanderbilt Orchestra have included two tours of China, with performances in such venues as the Shanghai Oriental Arts Center and the Great Hall of the People in Beijing. Under his leadership, the orchestra has consistently engaged the music of our time, participating in the Blair School’s BMI Composer in Residence program, and co-commissioning such works as ‘Love Song to the Sun,’ a visual electric violin concerto written by and featuring Tracy Silverman, presented at OZ Arts, Nashville. Prior to his service at Vanderbilt, he led the orchestra program at Duquesne University in Pittsburgh.

Professor Fountain is now in his fourteenth season as Music Director of the Southwest Michigan Symphony. He previously served as Music Director of the Williamsport (PA) Symphony, where he was honored with the Director’s Chair Award from the Williamsport Community Arts Center, recognizing his impact on the region’s artistic life. Guest conducting engagements have taken him to Russia (National Philharmonics of Tomsk and Kemorova), France (Orchestre d’Aix Coservatoire and L’Orchestre de Chambre de la Gironde), Poland (Opole and Sudecka Philharmonics) and Spain. He led the Tomsk National Philharmonic on a tour of China in 2003. Recent engagements in the US have included concerts with The Louisiana Philharmonic and Traverse City Symphony. 2019/20 engagements include a concert with the Singapore Symphony and a return visit to L’Orchestre Philharmonique Sainte Trinité, Haiti.

Tucker Biddlecombe (Ph.D.) is director of choral activities at Vanderbilt University’s Blair School of Music, where he conducts the Vanderbilt Chorale and Symphonic Choir, and serves as Director of Music Teacher Education. He also serves as Director of the Nashville Symphony Orchestra Chorus. Biddlecombe is a veteran teacher and a passionate advocate for music education. Ensembles under his direction have toured nationally and internationally and have performed to acclaim at state and division conventions of ACDA. He is in demand as a conductor and clinician having served as a clinician to choirs in 25 states, and was a recent guest lecturer and clinician at the Central Conservatory of Music in Beijing. A native of Buffalo New York, Biddlecombe is a graduate of SUNY Potsdam and Florida State University, where he completed doctoral studies in choral conducting and music education with André Thomas. He resides in Nashville with his wife Mary Biddlecombe, Artistic Director of the Blair Children’s Chorus.

Mary Biddlecombe serves as Artistic Director of the Blair Children’s Chorus at Vanderbilt University. She conducts each of the six graded choirs of the program, including the Concert Choir (high school girls), Young Men’s Chorus (changed men’s voices), Choristers (middle school girls), Boy choir (unchanged boys), Training Choir, and the select treble ensemble Chorale.

Biddlecombe has taught music at every grade level. Choirs under her direction have been invited to perform for conventions of the American Choral Directors Association, as well as symphonic works with significant orchestras. Recent projects have included Benjamin Britten’s War Requiem, Roger Waters’ Ça Ira, and Gustav Mahler’s Eighth Symphony with the Nashville Symphony Orchestra, and John Rutter’s Mass of the Children with the Vanderbilt Symphony Orchestra and Symphonic Choir. Upcoming engagements include John Adams’ On the Transmigration of Souls, Mahler’s Third Symphony, and Leonard Bernstein’s Mass.
Biddlecombe is in demand as an adjudicator and clinician, and has presented interest sessions at conferences all over the Southeast. She has been engaged to conduct the Florida All-State Middle School Treble Choir in 2017. A native of Syracuse, N.Y., she holds a Master of Music in Conducting from Florida State University and a Bachelors of Music Education from the Crane School of Music at SUNY Potsdam. Biddlecombe makes her home in Nashville with her husband Tucker Biddlecombe, Director of Choral Activities at Vanderbilt, and their dog, Bernice.

Ben Edquist is one of America’s young baritones on the rise. As a recent member of the Houston Grand Opera Studio he originated the roles of Edward Kynaston in Carlisle Floyd’s Prince of Players, the baritone Angel in Jake Heggie and Gene Scheer’s It’s a Wonderful Life, and Sir Walter Raleigh in Gregory Spears’ O Columbia. Other highlights with Houston Grand Opera include: Belcore in L’elisir d’amore, the Pilot in The Little Prince, Jigger Craigin in Carousel, the Count in Le nozze di Figaro, and Older Thompson in Tom Cipullo’s Glory Denied.

Since leaving the Studio, Edquist has been in three other world premieres, portraying Mayo Buckman in Tom Cipullo’s newest opera Mayo, the role of Manfred in Jake Heggie's Out of Darkness: Two Remain with Atlanta Opera, and, in his European debut, the role of Remo in The Skating Rink by David Sawer with Garsington Opera.

This season Edquist shared performances of Handel’s Messiah, William Dale in the Pulitzer Prize winning opera Silent Night, and Kaiser Overall in Der Kaiser von Atlantis and Pierrot in L’ile de Merlin with Wolf Trap Opera. He looks forward to Figaro in Il barber di Siviglia(role debut), Hawkins Fuller in Fellow Travelers, and returning to the role of Papageno in Die Zauberflöte.

Edquist has spent his summers performing with the Glimmerglass Festival and Wolf Trap Opera. After a season with the Wolf Trap Opera Studio in which he sang the role of Antonio in Il viaggio a Reims, he returned as a Filene Young Artist to perform the roles of William in The Fall of the House of Usher and the Father in The Juniper Tree. Edquist made his Glimmerglass Festival debut in 2014 as Jigger Craigin in Carousel, and returned to the festival the following season to perform Papageno in a new production of The Magic Flute. Other roles include Sid in Albert Herring, Antonio in Le nozze di Figaro, Charlie in Jake Heggie’s Three Decembers, and Guglielmo in Così fan tutte. A native of Lake Jackson, Texas, he received his Master of Music from Rice University in 2015 and his Bachelor of Music from Vanderbilt University in 2013.

Edquist has been named a top prize winner in the William Matheus Sullivan Competition, first place winner of the Lotte Lenya Competition, and a finalist in both the Meistersinger Competition in Graz and the HGO Eleanor McCollum Competition & Concert of Arias.

Tyler Nelson is one of America’s most promising young tenors, already enjoying success in a wide variety of concert repertoire.

Recent engagements have included debuts with New Orleans Opera as Don Ottavio in Don Giovanni, Dayton Opera as Belmonte in Die Entführung aus dem Serail, the Utah Symphony & Opera as Le théière/ Le petit vieillard in L’enfant et les sortileges, Opera Naples as Alfred in Die Fledermaus, Opera Omaha as Trin in La fanciulla del West, Wide Open Opera in Ireland as Almaviva in Il barbiere di Siviglia, and in Handel’s Messiah with Augustana College, as well as multiple performances with Le Festival Lyrique International de Belle-Île en Mer as Nemorino in L’elisir d’amore, Ferrando in Cost fan tutte and as the tenor soloist in Beethoven’s Mass in C and Mozart’s Vesperae solennes de confessore and Requiem. His 2017-2018 season included Don Ottavio in Don Giovanni with Opera on the James, Almaviva in Il barbiere di Siviglia with Opera Tampa, Handel’s Messiah with the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, and Paul in Rocking Horse Winner and the Magician in The Consul, both with Opera Saratoga.

Engagements for the 2018-2019 season and beyond include Alfredo in La Traviata with Opera on the James, Elijah with Salt Lake Choral Artists, Tamino in Die Zauberflöte with Irish National Opera, Arturo in Lucia di Lammermoor with the Festival Lyrique International de Belle-Île en Mer, and Frederick in The Pirates of Penzance with Opera Tampa.
A frequent performer at the Castleton Festival, Nelson has performed Gonzalve in L’heure espagnole, and under the baton of Maestro Lorin Maazel: Male Chorus in Rape of Lucretia, Gherardo and Rinuccio in Gianni Schicchi, the Mayor in Albert Herring, Maese Pedro in El retablo del Maese Pedro, Father in 7 Deadly Sins, La Rainette in L’enfant et les sortilèges, Don Ottavio in Don Giovanni, and Almaviva in Il barbiere di Siviglia, which he performed at the Castleton Festival and with the National Center for the Performing Arts in Beijing, China.

Nelson has a wide range of operatic experience. During successive seasons with Ohio Light Opera, arts blog CoolCleveland.com commented of his performance: “Tyler Nelson, as that erstwhile clergyman, could steal the show if he tried. As it was, he nearly brought down the house with ’I Aim to Please.’” Opera News, reviewing a recording of Maytime, called his singing “mellifluous.”

Additional highlights include performances of the Britten Serenade with the Utah Valley Symphony, Beethoven’s 9th Symphony with the Saginaw Bay Symphony, Mozart’s Requiem and Bach’s St. John Passion with Salt Lake City Choral Artists, and Orff’s Carmina Burana with the California and Reno Symphonies. He has also appeared as a soloist on the stages of the Kennedy Center and at Carnegie Hall.

His international debut was in Mazatlan, Mexico, performing the role of Shallow in Gordon Getty’s Plump Jack, under the direction of the composer. Robert Commanday of San Francisco Classical Voice said of that performance: “Tyler Nelson ... did a captivating number on Justice Shallow. His diction was impeccable and his animation as the silly, ridiculous squire won for him alone laughs that were independent of the lines. His bright, keenly focused, vibrant tenor invites Mozart. He has a big future.”

Recent seasons have included debuts with Chicago Opera Theater in the role of Delfa for their production of Giasone, and a return for their production of Médee. Of his performance in Giasone, Mark Thomas Ketterson of Opera News commented: “Tyler Nelson was hilarious as a travesti Delfa, managing the passaggio of his tenor with notable skill and looking for all the world like Mollie Sugden's Mrs. Slocombe on Are You Being Served?” Venus Zarris of Chicago Stage Review stated: “Tyler Nelson commits comic operatic highway robbery by embodying all that is hysterical about drag, as Delfathe maidservant to Medea, while simultaneously delivering some of the production’s most superb singing.”
Program Notes

Carmina Burana (pronounced CAR-mi-na bu-RAH-na), also known as the Codex Buranus, is a medieval manuscript consisting of more than 200 lyric poems and six plays. It is the largest single collection of medieval secular verse available to us. Full of ribald and even sacrilegious humor, it was kept for over 500 years as an uncatalogued secretly-read book in a cabinet at the Benediktbeuern monastery in Bavaria, Germany. Despite the publication of two editions and translations of the poems into many languages, Carmina Burana languished on scholars’ shelves until Carl Orff set some of the verses to music in 1936.

During the middle ages, almost all literate persons had some connection with the Catholic church, the center of learning in Europe. But not all used their church-taught literacy and fluency in Latin for church-approved ends. Among the authors of Carmina Burana were frocked and defrocked priests and monks, reverent and irreverent students and wanderers, famous people under their own names – Walter of Châtillon – and aliases – the self-proclaimed Archpoet of Cologne – and possibly even Peter Abelard. Variously called Vagabond Poets, Goliards (for their mythical leader Goliath, who may have represented Goliath and/or gluttony), and Gleemen, they formed several overlapping groups, considered to be separate by some scholars and indistinguishable by others. They wrote religious poems, poems about physical love, and poems about the gods and goddesses of Greece and Rome. They also wrote ferocious satires in the service of morality, describing lust, gluttony, and drunkenness in such excessive terms as to arouse disgust in the reader. And they often delighted in standing Christian ideas and images on their heads. Examples of all types abound in Carmina Burana, sometimes within a single lyric.

Included among the verses set by Orff are the racy “Confession of Golias” (No. 11), the damnation of a roasted swan (No. 12), the fate of a gambling Abbot of Cockaigne (No. 13), the orgiastic “Veni, veni, venias” (No. 20), and a hymn to a soon-to-be non-virgin (No. 24). These images are not standard homiletic fare.

The quality of the lyrics in Carmina Burana varies from mediocre to first-rate. “The Confession of Golias” is usually considered the finest secular Latin poem of the middle ages, the finest religious counterpart being the “Dies Irae” of the Requiem Mass. In fact, the line “curam gero cutis” [I take care of my skin] from “The Confession” is sometimes assumed to be a direct parody of “Gere curam mei finis” [Take care of me when I die] from “Dies Irae.” However, “The Confession” is usually attributed to the Archpoet of Cologne, who flourished during the 1160s at the court of Reinald of Dassel, Archbishop of Cologne and Archchancellor to Frederic Barbarossa. “Dies Irae” is usually attributed to Thomas of Celano, who lived 50 years later (c. 1200-55). If these dates are correct, then the parody, if there is one, is of the profane by the sacred.

The lyrics of Carmina Burana were meant to be sung, and the original manuscript includes some musical notation for 43 of the songs. Attempts have been made at turning the imprecise medieval markings into modern musical notation, and several recordings of the poems in their “original” settings are available. However, Carl Orff was not inspired by the original musical setting but by the words. Aided initially by a modern German translation, he selected 23 of the poems in whole or in part, mainly Latin with some Old German and a very few lines of Old French, and arranged them into a cycle with three major sections: Spring, In the Tavern, and the Court of Love. The Tavern section includes gambling and damnation as well as drinking. Before and after these three sections, serving as Introduction and Coda, are invocations of the medieval image of the capricious goddess Fortune, Empress of the World. Her spinning wheel determines the fate of all, hurling one man high and another low and then reversing their positions.

Though not medieval, Orff’s music employs a few pseudo-medieval touches, such as the parody of ecclesiastical chanting in the Abbot of Cockaigne’s song (No. 13). Throughout, a primitive effect is achieved by means of strong rhythms (produced by a battery of percussion), simple harmonies, and frequent repetition. From beginning to end, the exuberance and force of the original lyrics come through.
