What have you been working on in Barton's Lab?

"I have been working on a Jen's (doctoral student) MAP which is focused on how parent's who receive training in how to engage their children in play can benefit the play of their children."

What did you do before Vanderbilt?

"I worked in a preschool for kids with special needs and fell in love with the field of special education. Seeing the kids change and improve made me want to keep working with them to see even more improvements. I decided that I wanted to continue my education so I could be more knowledgeable and gain experience to make a bigger difference in the kids' lives."

What do you hope to do after you graduate from Vanderbilt?

"I am still undecided because Vanderbilt provides so many opportunities, but I either want to teach in a preschool classroom or be a behavior analyst."
