The Master of Science (M.S.) in Speech-Language Pathology (SLP) program at Vanderbilt University School of Medicine is accredited by the Council on Academic Accreditation in Audiology and Speech-Language Pathology (CAA) of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association, 2008 Research Boulevard #1010, Rockville, Maryland, 20850, 800-498-2071 or 301-296-5700.
The Vanderbilt University Graduate Program in Hearing and Speech Sciences was established in 1951. It is the largest graduate program in the School of Medicine, offering programs combining courses and practicum experiences that are unique to their Vanderbilt Program. This training includes a full-time Maymester immersion program at a site that specializes in children’s hearing loss.

training – by combining core coursework with speech-language pathology, audiology, and deaf education, students can choose separate courses that are specific to their goals.

Infants and Young Children with Autism
Students enrolled in this Specialization Track will have additional coursework and practicum experiences that will prepare them to work with infants and children with autism. They will complete a 10-week clinical experience in a program that serves children with autism.

Seminars and Practicums
Students requirement for initiating graduate study in accredited SLP programs.

The above four areas of study are required for the Master of Science degree in Speech-Language Pathology (M.S.-SLP). Students who apply without a degree in the field or without a degree in the related fields can apply for admission to the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine.

Pharmacy
Requirements for admission include: a baccalaureate degree with a minimum GPA of 3.0; three years of full-time study in an accredited SLP program; and completion of a degree program in speech-language pathology by Fall semester applications is January 15. Applications are accepted only for full-time residential students. The Vanderbilt program. This training includes a full-time Maymester immersion program at a site that specializes in children’s hearing loss.

Students interested in the Vanderbilt University Graduate Program in Hearing and Speech Sciences are encouraged to complete the online form on our website. You can visit the department during on-campus Visits.

The Vanderbilt Bill Wilkerson Center (VBWC) offers an M.S.-SLP degree students one of the finest training facilities in the country by affording them the unique environment of the Vanderbilt University Medical Center (VUMC) and its affiliated institutions. Vanderbilt students. The Department also has affiliations with public and private schools and the Vanderbilt Reading Schools.

The pediatric coursework in the Vanderbilt program specializes in childhood hearing loss. Most students finishing this track will have additional coursework and training in the specialty track.

The above four areas of study are required for the Master of Science degree in Speech-Language Pathology (M.S.-SLP). Students who apply without a degree in the field or without a degree in the related fields can apply for admission to the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine.

Pharmacy
Requirements for admission include: a baccalaureate degree with a minimum GPA of 3.0; three years of full-time study in an accredited SLP program; and completion of a degree program in speech-language pathology by Fall semester applications is January 15. Applications are accepted only for full-time residential students. The Vanderbilt program. This training includes a full-time Maymester immersion program at a site that specializes in children’s hearing loss.

Students interested in the Vanderbilt University Graduate Program in Hearing and Speech Sciences are encouraged to complete the online form on our website. You can visit the department during on-campus Visits.

The Vanderbilt Bill Wilkerson Center (VBWC) offers an M.S.-SLP degree students one of the finest training facilities in the country by affording them the unique environment of the Vanderbilt University Medical Center (VUMC) and its affiliated institutions. Vanderbilt students. The Department also has affiliations with public and private schools and the Vanderbilt Reading Schools.

The pediatric coursework in the Vanderbilt program specializes in childhood hearing loss. Most students finishing this track will have additional coursework and training in the specialty track.

The above four areas of study are required for the Master of Science degree in Speech-Language Pathology (M.S.-SLP). Students who apply without a degree in the field or without a degree in the related fields can apply for admission to the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine.

Pharmacy
Requirements for admission include: a baccalaureate degree with a minimum GPA of 3.0; three years of full-time study in an accredited SLP program; and completion of a degree program in speech-language pathology by Fall semester applications is January 15. Applications are accepted only for full-time residential students. The Vanderbilt program. This training includes a full-time Maymester immersion program at a site that specializes in children’s hearing loss.

Students interested in the Vanderbilt University Graduate Program in Hearing and Speech Sciences are encouraged to complete the online form on our website. You can visit the department during on-campus Visits.

The Vanderbilt Bill Wilkerson Center (VBWC) offers an M.S.-SLP degree students one of the finest training facilities in the country by affording them the unique environment of the Vanderbilt University Medical Center (VUMC) and its affiliated institutions. Vanderbilt students. The Department also has affiliations with public and private schools and the Vanderbilt Reading Schools.

The pediatric coursework in the Vanderbilt program specializes in childhood hearing loss. Most students finishing this track will have additional coursework and training in the specialty track.

The above four areas of study are required for the Master of Science degree in Speech-Language Pathology (M.S.-SLP). Students who apply without a degree in the field or without a degree in the related fields can apply for admission to the Vanderbilt University School of Medicine.

Pharmacy
Requirements for admission include: a baccalaureate degree with a minimum GPA of 3.0; three years of full-time study in an accredited SLP program; and completion of a degree program in speech-language pathology by Fall semester applications is January 15. Applications are accepted only for full-time residential students. The Vanderbilt program. This training includes a full-time Maymester immersion program at a site that specializes in children’s hearing loss.