September 9, 2019

Dear Colleague:

The Department of Neuroscience and the Mahoney Institute for Neurosciences (MINS) at the University of Pennsylvania are currently seeking applicants for a faculty position in the tenure track at the Assistant Professor or Associate Professor level in basic neuroscience. Special attention will be given to those applying innovative molecular approaches. Highly competitive lab space and start-up funds are available for the successful candidate. The Department of Neuroscience is located within a vibrant environment on the Penn campus. MINS includes more than 200 labs, spanning the breadth of the neurosciences, brought together to foster collaborative and multi-disciplinary approaches to advance our understanding of the brain.

Applications will be accepted online only.
