IT'S HERE! 2019 CAREER SYMPOSIUM

You've registered! How to prepare...

Dress in business casual.

Please arrive on time! Registration is open at 8:30am. Our first speaker begins very promptly at 9:00am.

Pick up your nametag. Your nametag will include your career exploration workshop choice and networking huddles. (We recommend wearing your nametag on your right side near your collar.)

Review! Review the speaker bios and Networking Huddle info in advance and come prepared with your questions. You'll make a great impression!

See you on Friday, May 31 from 9:00am-5:00pm at the Student Life Center.

Whoops, I forgot to register! Email Kate.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

If you missed it on Twitter, 12 graduate students and postdocs hit the road to San Diego last month to visit 6 pharma and biotech companies to meet and interact with industry postdocs, research scientists, and executives. Read the recap here.

The BRET Office of Career Development will be hosting management consulting firm McKinsey for an employer info session on June 27. More details here.

The Simons Foundation Autism Research Initiative (SFARI) has announced a unique funding opportunity in the 2019 Bridge to Independence Award. Learn more about the stipulations, scope, and deadlines for the award.

The Defense Threat Reduction Agency (DTRA) will host the 2019 Chemical and Biological Defense Science & Technology \(CBD S&T\) Conference at the Duke Energy Convention Center, in Cincinnati, Ohio, November 18-21, 2019. Collaborate with more than 1,500 scientists, program managers and leaders from across the globe who are committed to making the world safer by confronting chemical and biological defense challenges. This is a great opportunity for someone interested in working in defense/military areas of government (either as an analyst or scientist), or someone interested in defense-related consulting. ASPIRE travel scholarships are available!
