Prevention Education Programming 2016-17

Cara Tuttle Bell, Director

Project Safe Center

Prevention Education Programming 2016-17

Purpose

The mission of the Project Safe Center is to provide information, support, referrals, and education about interpersonal violence (including sexual harassment, sexual assault, dating violence, domestic violence, and stalking), as well as consent, healthy relationships, and healthy sexuality to the Vanderbilt University community. Project Safe serves as a central resource for those impacted by interpersonal violence and can assist with navigating the University's resource and support network (including the Psychological and Counseling Center, Student Health Center, the Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action and Disability Services Department, and the Vanderbilt University Police Department) as well as external support and law enforcement resources.

Core Areas of Responsibility

- Project Safe provides direct service and support to those impacted by interpersonal violence, including sexual harassment, sexual assault, intimate partner violence, and stalking.
- The Project Safe hotline, (615) 322-SAFE (7233), is staffed 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year.
- Project Safe staff provides assistance to students who may wish to file a report with law enforcement and/or the University and helps coordinate, as appropriate, any necessary or requested interim accommodations, such as a change in housing arrangements, class or work schedules, or a Dean's notification related to class attendance, completion of assignments or exams, or the extension of deadlines. Project Safe staff reports to the Vanderbilt University Medical Center Emergency Department outside of business hours when requested by a student.

- Project Safe staff provides assistance to faculty and staff impacted by interpersonal violence during regular business hours. Project Safe staff accompany faculty and staff who may wish to file a report to meetings with law enforcement and/or the University and may provide resource and referral information, as appropriate.
- Project Safe coordinates University initiatives designed to raise awareness and address interpersonal violence through a variety of prevention programming efforts, primarily the Green Dot bystander intervention program, the Escalation dating violence intervention workshop, and the Haven—Understanding Sexual Assault module.
- Project Safe submits crime report data or other incident data as required by the Clery Act and Title IX.

Violence Prevention Programs

In 2016-17, Project Safe offered or participated in 250 programs, reaching over 9,800 members of the Vanderbilt University community through participation in tabling, orientation, student fairs, trainings, and as visiting lecturers in academic classes. Project Safe staff regularly offer effective consent education, including information on the relationship between alcohol consumption and consent, through collaborative programs with the Vanderbilt Sex Ed Peer Educators and the Center for Student Wellbeing. Detailed information on our primary programs is offered below.

Green Dot Bystander Intervention Training

The Green Dot campaign is a coordinated campus effort to reduce and prevent interpersonal violence, including stalking, sexual, and relationship violence through bystander intervention training. The Green Dot curriculum provides a way for anyone to respond safely to incidents of interpersonal violence they may witness. Vanderbilt has utilized this curriculum since 2009. In 2016-17, Project Safe offered 50 Green Dot Overviews and 15 Training sessions. Over 1,076 Vanderbilt students, faculty, and staff attended a Green Dot overview during the past academic year and over 600 VU community members completed a 3- or 6-hour training.

Undergraduate Student Participation: In 2016-17, Project Safe staff and the Green Dot facilitators provided Green Dot Overviews to 672 undergraduate students and trained 538 undergraduate students, including all Housing and Residential Education resident advisers, student VUceptors, and all new Interfraternity Council (IFC) members, three significant groups of student leaders well-positioned to employ bystander intervention techniques. We trained 9% of the undergraduate student population and reached an additional 10.5% of the undergraduate student population through overviews, exceeding the goals recommended by the national Green Dot curriculum.

Graduate and Professional Student Participation: In 2016-17, Project Safe staff and the Green Dot facilitators provided Green Dot Overviews to 43 graduate or professional students and trained 12 graduate or professional students.

Haven—Understanding Sexual Assault

Beginning with the 2015-2016 academic year, all incoming students (undergraduate first-year, undergraduate transfer, graduate and professional) were required to complete the Haven—Understanding Sexual Assault module, offered through educational vendor EverFi. In 2016-17, the University again required incoming students to complete the module, with graduate and professional students now required to complete Haven Plus, which is tailored for those populations, featuring scenarios of workplace and peer sexual harassment, in addition to the overviews of sexual assault, dating and domestic violence, and stalking provided in Haven. Both versions of the Haven module are interactive, online educational programs which provide information on types of interpersonal violence, the prevalence of such violence, harmful gender stereotypes, ways to communicate sexual preferences and boundaries, on-campus prevention and support resources, Tennessee state law, and University policy.

Undergraduate Student Participation: In coordination with the Office of Student Accountability, Community Standards, and Academic Integrity, Project Safe helped to deliver a 100% compliance rate for incoming undergraduate student completion of Haven by the end of October 2017, matching the completion rate and timeline previously set with the implementation of the VU PETS module in 2013-14 and 2014-15 and the Haven module in 2015-16.

Graduate and Professional Student Participation: As of May 2017, 90.4% of degree-seeking first-year graduate and professional students have completed the module.

Escalation

Beginning in Fall 2015, Project Safe began offering the Escalation workshop, a dating violence awareness and intervention program created by the One Love Foundation, to the Vanderbilt community. The 2015-

16 academic year was planned to serve as a soft roll-out for the program, which builds upon peer-to-peer facilitation. Project Safe fully launched the program in Fall 2016, with staff offering 11 Escalation workshops in 2016-17, reaching 95 undergraduate students, 1 graduate/professional student, 33 staff members, and one faculty member. In addition to Project Safe Center staff, 2 graduate students and 9 undergraduate students were trained as facilitators of the program.

Title IX and Clery Act Compliance and Training

Project Safe staff assist the University in complying with state and federal laws, most significantly Title IX and the Clery Act, both of which require most University employees to report incidents of interpersonal violence to designated University authorities (the University's Title IX Coordinator and Vanderbilt University Police Department). The Director of Project Safe regularly partners with the University's Title IX Coordinator, Associate Dean of Students for Community Standards and Student Support, and the Director of the Office of Student Accountability, Community Standards, and Academic Integrity to train faculty, staff, and students who are designated mandated reporters. Project Safe offered or contributed to 35 trainings during the 2016-17 academic year.

New Programs Introduced in 2016-17

In response to student interest and needs, Project Safe staff developed new programs for introduction during the 2016-17 academic year. Those programs include:

- Supporting a Survivor (for students)
- Supporting a Survivor (for faculty and staff)
- The Language of Violence
- Actionable Next Steps: Moving Beyond Awareness-Raising (for Greek student organizations)
- Understanding Coercion
- 'Dores Prevention Playbook
- Reducing Slutshaming and Victim-blaming
- Sexploitation: Sexting, Coercion, and Consent
- Setting and Maintaining Healthy Boundaries
- Survivor Self-Care

Full descriptions of all programs may be found at <http://www.vanderbilt.edu/projectsafe/programs>.

Project Safe also began offering an ongoing support group, Rooted in Resilience, facilitated by Prevention Educator and Victim Resource Specialist Sarah Jordan Welch, MSW. Rooted in Resilience was open to all student victim-survivors and met twice a month on Wednesday early evenings at the Project Safe Center.

Programs for Student Athletes

For student athletes, Project Safe developed the 'Dores Prevention Playbook, a 90-minute training that helps build bystander intervention skills, teaches students to recognize the warning signs of dating violence, guides students through completion of a healthy boundaries worksheet, explores the connections between sports language and team environments and the desensitization of violence, and highlights the stiff potential penalties and other costs relevant to athletes. All varsity teams completed this training during 2016-17, with new student athletes set to complete this program each year.

Greek Life / Greek Member Experience (GME) Programs

For the third consecutive year, Project Safe and the Office of Greek Life partnered to ensure that all new members of Interfraternity Council fraternities completed Green Dot bystander intervention training as part of their new member education. Project Safe Center staff conducted survivor-sensitivity and anti-retaliation training for students serving as IFC Greek Allies and members of Panhellenic Council's Gamma Chi Greek women student advisers. Furthermore, Project Safe offered 24 programs in 2016-17 as part of the Greek Member Experience and provided an additional 24 programs by special request from chapter organizations.

My Vanderbilt Experience (MVE)

Project Safe offered 13 programs in the Fall semester and another 17 programs during Spring semester that counted towards students' completion of the My Vanderbilt Experience (MVE) program. Project Safe programs regularly fulfill requirements for completing the Culture of Care and/or Health and Wellness tracks. We believe that our participation in this co-curricular engagement program assists us in building awareness of our services among first-year students and attracting all students to our annual Sexual Assault Awareness Month events in April.

Looking Forward

With the advent of the 2017-18 academic year, Project Safe will begin its fourth academic year of existence as a stand-alone Center and will continue to build upon the promotional and expansion efforts undertaken to raise awareness of the Center and its growing range of services.

In the 2017-18 academic year, Project Safe Center goals including continuing to expand its programmatic offerings, particularly through collaboration with partner offices, such as the Center for Student Wellbeing and Black Cultural Center, and by building stronger relationships with the graduate and professional programs. Project Safe staff will offer on-site advocacy office hours in graduate and professional school locations, and will offer a series of professional development programs designed for graduate and professional students, which will explore how to support student survivors of sexual violence, navigating sexual harassment in graduate school, and careers in Title IX compliance.

Vanderbilt Student Government and Project Safe will continue to partner in participation with the It's On Us initiative. Project Safe will continue to build student involvement in dating violence awareness campaigns through promotion of the One Love Foundation Escalation workshop and programs and will continue to offer our popular Green Dot bystander intervention trainings.
