

Modes of Instruction

In Person

- Has a meeting pattern and an assigned classroom.
- Synchronous delivery of course material for both in-person and remote students.
- Available to remote-only students via Zoom.
- Requires in-person attendance for non-remote students, except where the student is ill, quarantined, or has an approved accommodation.
- Schedule note: The social distance capacity of the room assigned to this section is [XX]. The number of students in this classroom at any time cannot exceed the social distance capacity of [XX].

Hybrid

- Has a meeting pattern and an assigned classroom.
- Includes both in-person and online components.
- May involve both synchronous and asynchronous delivery of course material.
- Supports a range of course designs to be determined by the faculty member; for example:
  - In-person lectures for a portion of enrolled students on a rotating basis, with the remaining portion(s) joining via Zoom
  - Flipped classroom with recorded lectures provided to all students, with synchronous discussion groups
  - Directed readings, with synchronous, Zoom-based discussion groups
- Schedule note: Hybrid: All students will participate in all class sessions, either in person or electronically, with those on campus attending in person on a rotating basis as directed by the instructor. The social distance capacity of the room assigned to this section is [XX]. The number of students in this classroom at any time cannot exceed the social distance capacity of [XX].

Online-Asynchronous

- No meeting pattern or assigned classroom.
- Course is taught entirely remotely; has no in-person component.
- All material is delivered asynchronously; a student can participate fully regardless of time zone or location.
- Schedule note: Class will meet asynchronously.

Online-Synchronous

- Has a meeting pattern but no assigned classroom.
- Can involve a combination of synchronous and asynchronous components.
- Course is taught entirely remotely; has no in-person component.
- Schedule note: This online class will be offered synchronously.

No Remote Students

- Has a meeting pattern and an assigned classroom.
- Synchronous, in-person delivery of course material.

- Not available to remote-only students.
- Requires in-person attendance, except where the student is ill, quarantined, or has an approved accommodation.
- Schedule note: Due to the nature of the delivery of this course, remote-only learners may not register for this course.
