In 1895, the Lumière brothers showcased the first moving pictures in a Paris café. Today, France is the second-largest film exporter after the US and remains a key player in the global movie market. Every May, the world cinema community returns to the birthplace of film to celebrate at the Cannes Film Festival. This two-week event, featuring film screenings, star sightings, and awards, is considered the most prestigious film festival globally since its inception in 1946. This Maymester class begins on May 4 (arriving the evening of May 3) in Paris, where we will spend a week exploring the history and current state of the French film industry. Students will engage in an accelerated course covering French film history from its beginnings, through the Golden Age, the New Wave, and up to the present day. In addition to this cinematic foundation, students will also examine the history and purpose of film festivals, considering how these events shape global film culture and industry practices. After gaining a comprehensive overview of French film history and economics, we will travel to Cannes for the film festival, where students will explore what makes Cannes the most prominent film festival in the world—from its politically charged origins to its role as a premier platform for international cinema. We will also take day trips to Nice, Monaco, Eze, and other Mediterranean locations with ties to international cinema. After two weeks in Cannes, students can either return home on May 24 or continue their travels in Europe. The final week of class, from May 25-29, will be virtual and dedicated to completing group projects and classwork. Students will meet in person or virtually for a mini class film festival to showcase their final projects. Students can complete the requirements for the class by May 24, if needed. For more information: https://my.vanderbilt.edu/maymestercannes
